Dedication

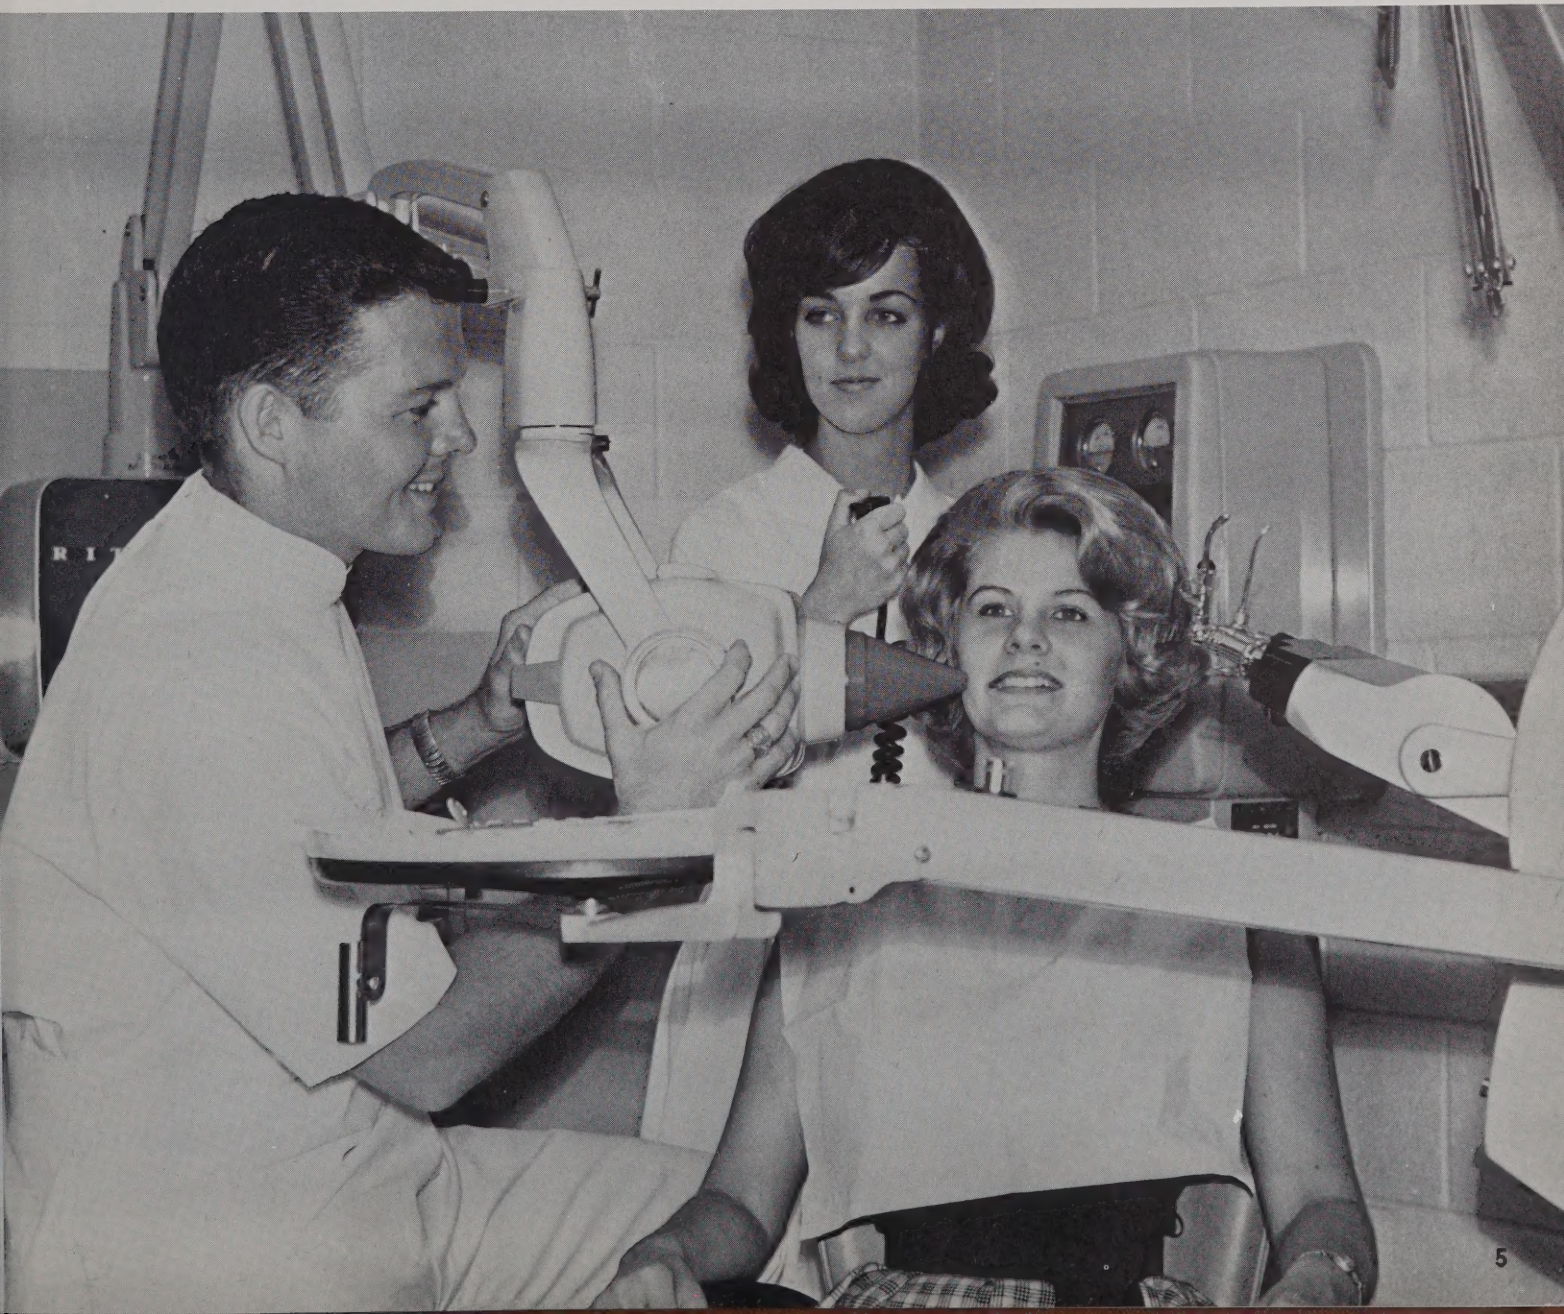

We first encountered Dr. Jack Bishop during our sophomore year when he taught us physiology.

Dr. Bishop represents all that is desirable in an instructor. His sincere interest, pure knowledge and enjoyable personality challenged us to follow suit.

With sincere thanks for all of his help and interest in us, the Class of 1963 wishes to dedicate this issue of the Baylor Burr.

It was once said to our class, "Look around you . . . into the faces of your classmates, because you will never be able to assemble your entire class again after graduation." This was true, because one hour after Commencement ended, it would have been nearly impossible to reassemble the entire class. Between the military service, internships, graduate school and private practice, the graduating class of 1963 was thoroughly scattered.

We can't really leave Baylor because we will take it with us wherever we locate. We only hope that we will always do credit to the fine education we have received.

Though they were trying, the past four years have had their light moments which are characteristic of each class. We ended with exactly fifteen single "good old boys." For getting through four years of school and remaining single, these men are doubly honored.

We presented a skit that we hoped the faculty would remember and enjoy. However, we had as much fun as the audience did.

Though an important phase of our dental education ended on May 27, 1963, an even more important phase began. We couldn't have a much better foundation for the future years of practice.

These past four years will always be an important part of our lives and will live in our memories no matter where we are located. We hope that this issue of the annual will serve to refresh our memories . . . lest we forget.

Ha . . ha . . . My mistake, that is the pulp after all!!

Editor's note: Before completing the caption the writer became ill. We ask that you not look at the picture too long!

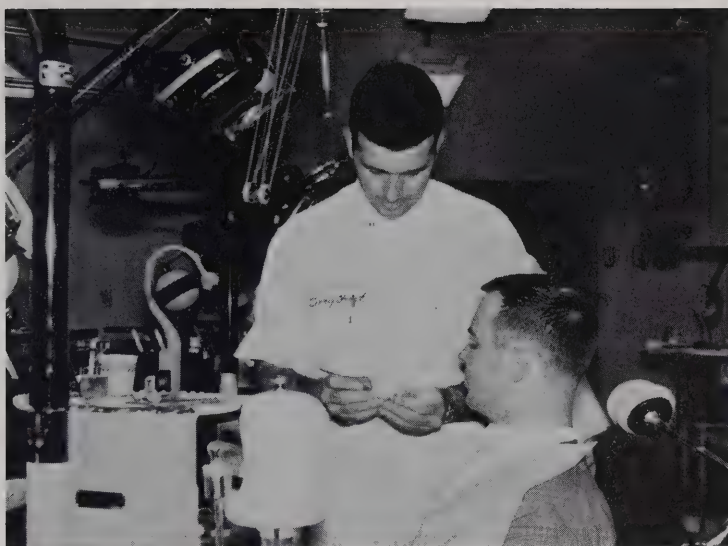

Seniors

And you younger fellows said I couldn't do it!!
Oh yes, we are very happy here at the school.

You know, sir, I believe you're right . . . This rubber dam works a lot better with the little holes punched in it! . . .

Frank said to "Hold it real tight until the Elmer's dries . . ."

Now . . . before we cement this little foil in, we must check its margins.

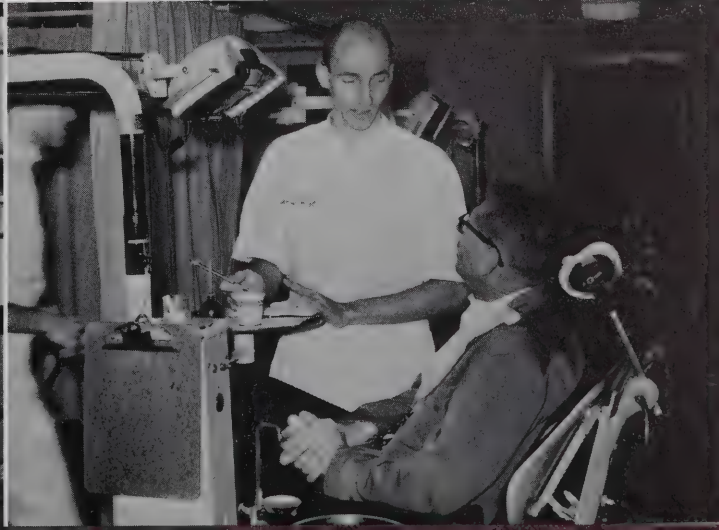

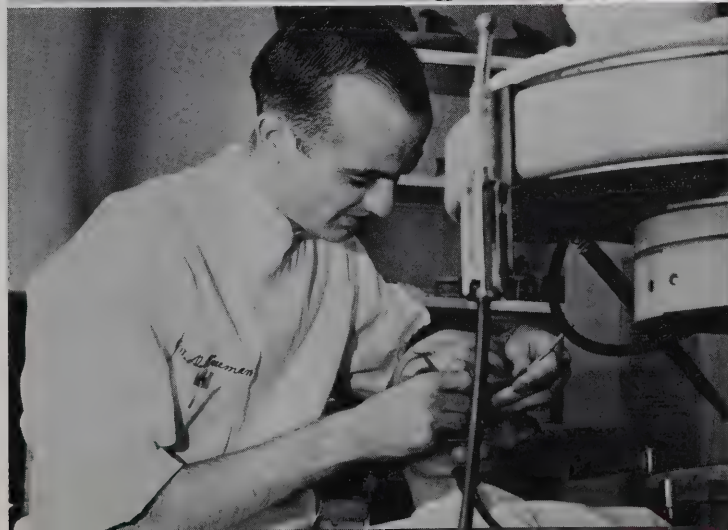

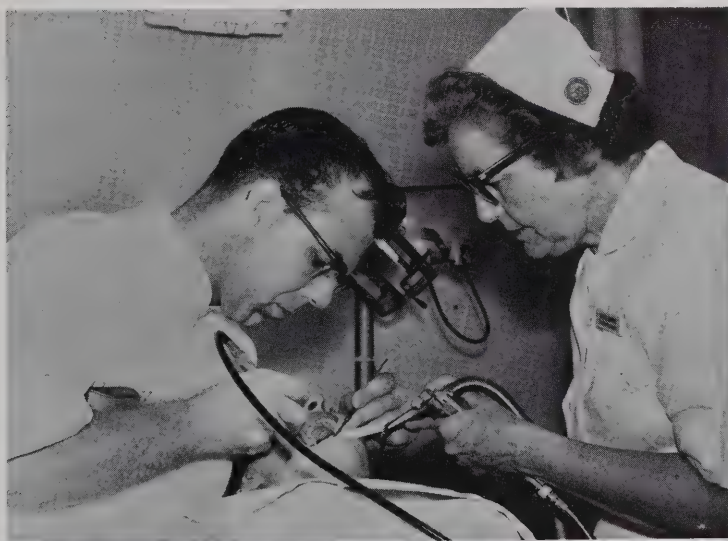

Let's see . . . put in amalgams this month and next month replace 'em with inlays, then full crowns, then . . . etc.

Seniors

Oops, well, mix up a little more Dycal, Mrs. Burke!
One of our school's foremost Okie exchange students.

Yeah, these are my immediate dentures!! I had to remake them immediately!

Yes, sir, your hair does look better, but that wasn't exactly what I meant when I said to "rinse with warm salt water!"

Now, you turn that in for a grade, but here's what we'll really do . . .

Just a little more angulation and those margins will be sealed!!

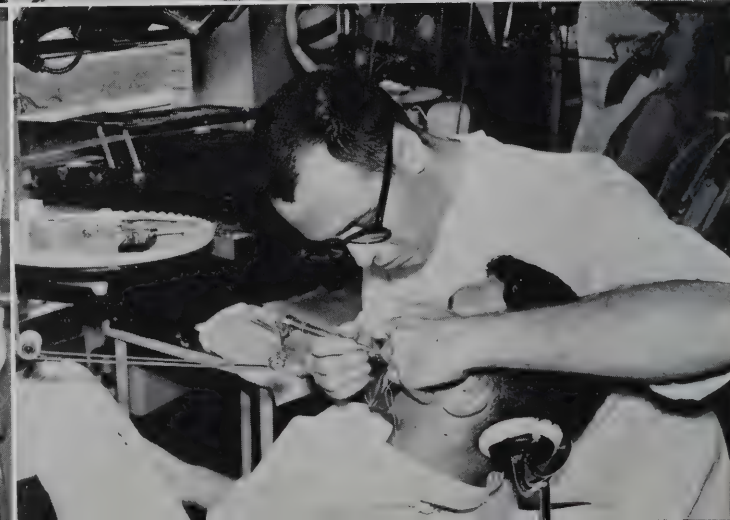

Seniors

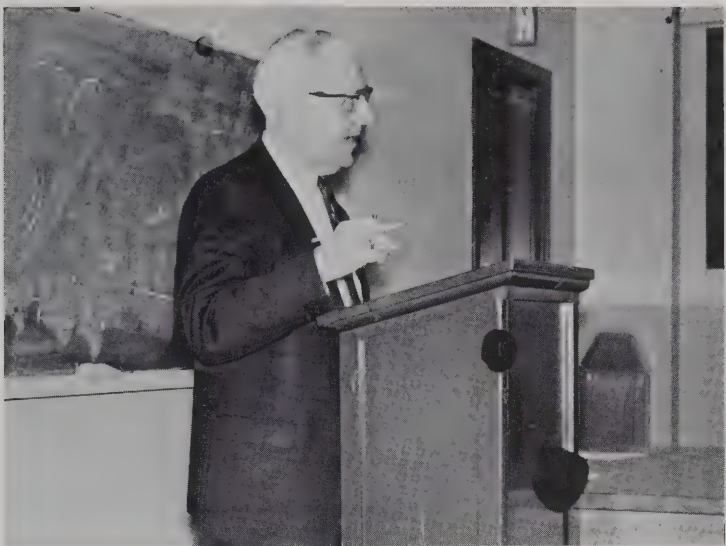

Oh, come on, Dr. Bishop . . . open up . . . I promise it won't hurt!!!

It's not what it seems . . . Dr. "Bazooey" is actually treating a severe case of athlete's foot.

Now . . . uh . . . you hold still . . . and . . . uh . . . let's see . . . uh . . . this time let's try it with . . . uh . . . the machine on . . . okay? . . .

Oh gee, if only my wife were here . . .

With a sad heart, I am obligated to inform you that you will no longer be required to pay tuition.

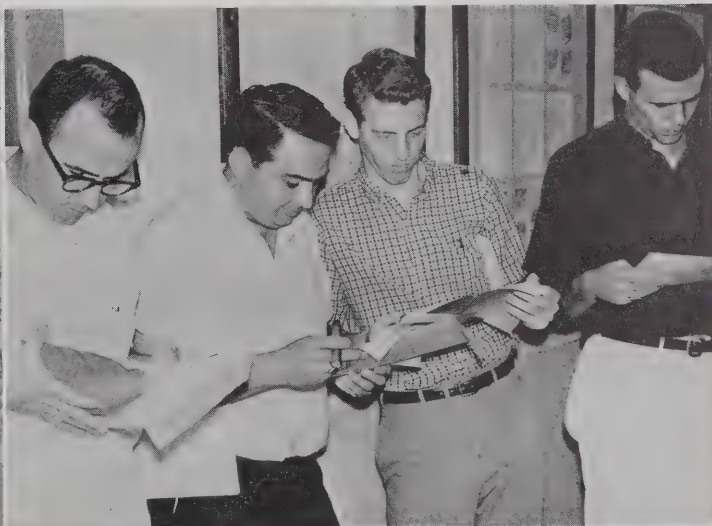

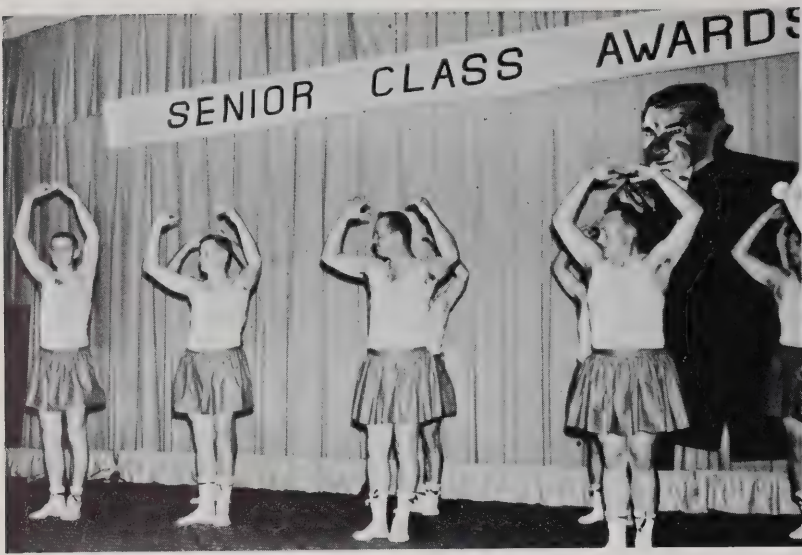

It's an application to take the dental aptitude entrance exams!

Announcement Day

And we only had to go two years . . . nyaah . . . nyaah!!
Let's see, Gene, I'm sure you have one here somewhere.

I don't even remember taking that course!
Looks more like a "displaced persons" camp.

The famed Bolshoi ballet put in a surprise appearance!

Warner Brothers couldn't have done better.

Senior Skit

You should see his other face.

Good practice for a ski jump!

Hey, Lowe, an Indian really did shoot you.

The red-haired dragon!!

Senior Skit

Diligence, practice . . . beauty
No real ballet master dances in shoes.

Yankee technique
I guess I can't flunk anyone, now.

We can finally say that we are juniors. We have put on our white clothes, extracted teeth, studied Pharmacology every Sunday and done the countless other things reserved for the beginning of the third year.

To ourselves, we appear calm, poised and proficient in every aspect of our chosen profession. To our instructors, we appear to be able to have more exposures, more shy margins and more missed blocks than would seem possible. To our patients, we do not seem quite so calm or poised. And according to them—we have one, and only one, thought in mind—requirements.

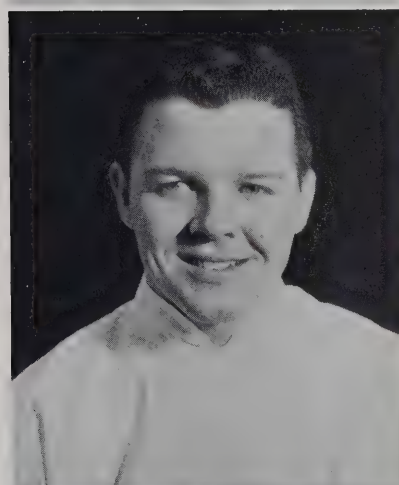

Whatever our appearance is to those about us, we board the elevator headed for our senior year with the knowledge that we have the best and that we have already left a mark on Baylor University College of Dentistry.

Eyes blazing with the fire of humanitarianism . . . fingers tingling with dexterity . . . voices joyfully raised in the lilting strains of "We Shall Overcome" . . . the Class of '65 confidently climbed the second plateau. This Mecca—the sophomore year—had for a traumatic nine months loomed before us as the haven of peace and joy where all is fair and right and justice flows down like a mighty stream.

A feeling of brotherhood prevailed as we left the business office, after having donated the bank's money, the family jewels and our shirts. But levity soon gave way to gleeful pandemonium. We learned that in addition to satisfying the insatiable quest for knowledge, free tickets to the Dallas Theatre Center would be available. Many wept with joy.

Our academic revelry was short lived as we soon found that attainment of sophomoreic glory would be much akin to charging that place of fire and brimstone with a pail of water. Scholastically, our horizons were broadened as the light of "sophomorphism" penetrated into the depths of our intellects. From dog trauma to crown and bridge (where crowns and bridges were built, made, fashioned and embryonically created) to prosthetics and operative, the class matched wits with some of the profession's finest. Pathology found us absorbed and attentive, and at the final pre-Christmas lecture, the class bubbled with enthusiasm.

The learning process was stimulated by lively seminars such as the well-attended Drummond-Bagwell session on proper speed at which to operate a gold foil condenser . . . or the famed parabolic curve discussions. All in all, it was an enlightening year with the class dauntlessly moving into the clinic at the year's end. We then began the practical application of the long hours of instruction, careful demonstration and thorough knowledge of oral prophylaxis.

The class began the ascent to the third plateau . . . this time singing "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen." Feeling scholastically exhausted, we reviewed the past year and found that 80 students had overwhelmed insurmountable odds.

The class is grateful for what we have learned and awaits eagerly our future attainments.

Although this year will be etched in its entirety in the minds of the freshman class, certain memories stand out more distinctly than others. Who can forget registration day when, amidst mingled emotions, we began the venture we had worked toward for such a long time? The first portion of our freshman year was a blur of feverish activity; days were filled with classes and labs and nights were long sojourns of study. Added to the continuous cycle of classes and studying was the whirl of rush parties as the fraternities vie to attract the freshmen as members.

As the year progressed, the tempo slowed slightly into a routine of classes and study. Monthly parties sponsored by the fraternities and school events such as the choir's presentation of the ageless and ever-beautiful Christmas carols afforded welcomed diversion. Soon the longed-for holidays arrived, and the class had a much needed "breather" before returning to face the battery of tests and exams.

New courses were added each trimester. May arrived bearing the approach of finals and we were faced with the task of proving how thoroughly we had absorbed the myriad of facts to which we were exposed throughout the year. After hours of study and review we took the finals to prove our mastery of the courses we had studied. With our first year behind us, we emerged with a sense of accomplishment and enrichment. We have earned the right to continue striving towards our ultimate goal—the coveted D.D.S.

In view of the growing relationship of science and religion, the College of Dentistry seeks to encourage the spiritual development of its students.

The BSU is the organized effort to interpret this concept. This was carried out during the past year through the freshman luncheon, chapel services, personal counselling, religion classes, Bible study groups, social activities and retreats.

The BSU was supervised by Rev. Roy Harrell, director of Religious Activities on the Dallas Campus. He was assisted by Mike Lundy and Lynette Craddock.

James Wilcox, right, was one of the thirty-one Texas students selected to do summer mission work this year. He will serve with former Baylor graduates in Nigeria, West Africa. David Cooper, left, was BSU Summer Missions Chairman.

Dr. Harold Basden, right, pastor of the Gaston Avenue Baptist Church, welcomes student Richard Bendele to the Freshman luncheon. Rev. Roy Harrell, director of Religious Activities on the Baylor-in-Dallas campus, made the introduction. The luncheon is held each year on registration day to introduce students to their faculty members, acquaint them with the Baptist Student Union and help them meet representatives of the various campus churches.

The B.S.U. seeks to minister to students of all faiths. It seeks to interpret the role of the professional man as a Christian in his home, his community, his profession, his nation and in his world.

The honor society is a student-inspired and student-governed organization with administration and faculty sanction.

The organization consists of 35 members—20 of whom are seniors and 15 juniors. Prospective members are those students who have senior or junior classifications, rank in the top percentage of their class scholastically and those who are strong in character and are desirous of educational pursuits outside the dental school curriculum.

The primary function of the society is to afford its members the opportunity of meeting with outstanding individuals in fields both related and non-related to dentistry, with emphasis on the latter, and to stimulate the desire for a well-rounded education.

In retrospect it may be seen that the farsighted and vigorous leadership provided within the fraternity and from the graduate members was responsible in large measure for a highly successful and profitable year for Delta Sigma Delta—both socially, professionally and growthwise.

A highly successful rushing season was climaxed by the addition of 38 new members and highlighted by a rush week table clinic orienting the freshmen into many aspects of dentistry and dental education. Other programs throughout the year have included Dr. Harold Younger speaking on "The Role of the Dentist in Community Life and Within the Local Dental Society"; Dr. Ralph Cooper, on "The Value of Basic Science in a Dental Practice"; Dr. Leo Alexander, "Various Clinical Manifestations of the Dental Student"; and Dr. Lester Matthews, "Comparative Educational Systems in the United States and England." Table clinics and seminars were also held. The annual wax carving and management clinic for freshmen by Dr. Leon Greene was well attended.

A warm camaraderie was the rule at the year's varied social functions. From the informal parties such as the get together at the Dreyfus Club, to the outdoor fun of Dr. Charles Yates' patio and pool, to the formal settings of the Christmas formal at the Glenn Lakes Country Club, a truly stimulating year of social activity was enjoyed.

The year's activity was climaxed by the Southern District Conclave held in Dallas and followed by the spring formal dinner dance at the Riverlakes Country Club.

As the year 1962-63 comes to a close, we stop to reminisce about the events of the past school year.

Ours was the first week of rush and began with a reception and dinner at the Lakewood Country Club. The mid-week smoker was held at the Holiday Inn. The showing of several excellent professional films was the main attraction of this event. A Levee party and an early morning breakfast climaxed the week. We signed 35 pledges for a very successful and pleasant ending to rush for 1962-63.

Programs at monthly meetings included talks on dentistry as well as related subjects of interest to the dental student. Several table clinics and movies were presented.

The social side of the fraternity included a party held every month—each with a seasonal theme.

The social year was concluded by the Red Rose Formal at the Cabana Hotel which was enjoyed by members, their wives and dates.

The fall of 1963 marked the forty-first year of the Delta Psi chapter of the Psi Omega fraternity. The chapter was organized at Baylor University College of Dentistry, Dallas, December 8, 1920, and is Baylor's oldest dental fraternity.

As usual, we had active support from our alumni chapter. This was also our third year to enjoy our fraternity house at 3919 Crutcher. Our house offers us a place to have our monthly meetings, rush activities, parties and convenient site for our overall enjoyment.

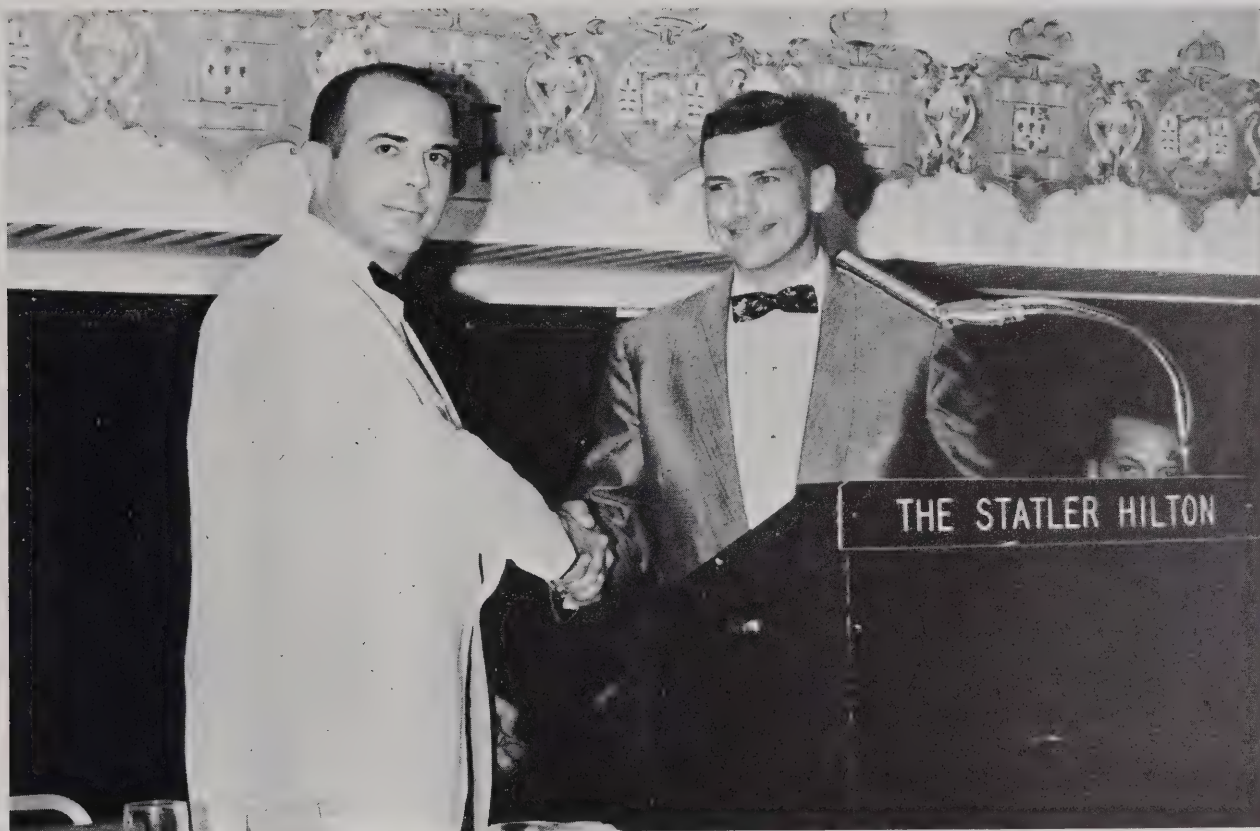

Our monthly meetings featured interesting programs and speakers. Among these were Col. Rule, United States Air Force, representatives of life insurance companies and table clinics from various dental supply companies.

The Wives' Club again contributed their active support. They held their annual Christmas party at the house and also raised funds for their activities through their parties, cookbook and rummage sale.

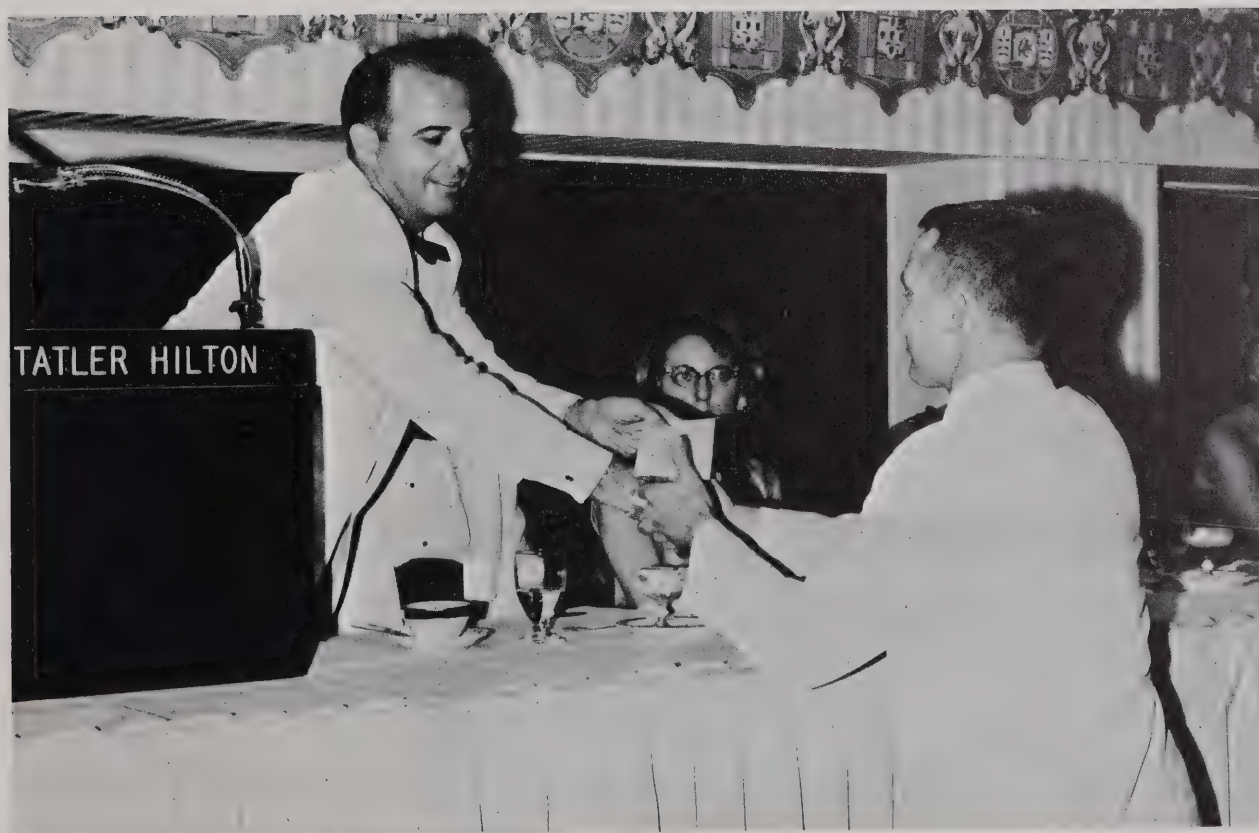

Our parties were enjoyed and included Western, Roman and Roaring Twenties parties. Our year ended with a fine Spring Formal at the Statler Hilton Hotel. Outstanding members and alumni were recognized and given awards. Seniors were awarded their diplomas and pins were presented to our new members.

We are looking forward to the ensuing year with great expectations and plan to make it an outstanding one for Psi Omega.

Dental Hygiene

The Caruth School of Dental Hygiene

Dr. Ruth Riley Swords, Director

The Caruth School of Dental Hygiene was organized in 1954 with a grant from the Caruth Foundation and W. W. Caruth, Jr.

Since that time certificates in Dental Hygiene have been awarded to 170 students.

The Dental Hygienist may pursue her work in many areas in the dental office—taking X-rays, giving prophylaxes, and educating patients in proper care of the mouth. She is also trained to aid the dentist in other duties in the dental office.

In public health service, which includes public schools and other dental health programs, the dental hygienist is an educator. She gives personal and classroom instruction in mouth hygiene, makes records of mouth conditions and gives oral prophylaxes. She is often asked to give talks on dental health to civic groups.

The dental hygienist continues to play an increasingly important role in aiding the dentist in routine duties and improving oral hygiene not only of his patients but the public.

The 1962-63 school year started with 21 of us. Fifty percent of our troubles were history—bacteriology, physiology and histology were in the past, but not to be forgotten. The National Board would be a grim reminder.

The first trimester our clinic duties began to fall into routine patterns. We gave a “get acquainted” coke party for the freshman girls, started attending ADHA meetings and received our caps. Before Thanksgiving our class had a dance with a band and a roaring fire at the Psi Omega house.

During the second trimester an ominous cloud began to settle, but we continued with our plans for the Christmas Dance, trying to tuck away all thoughts of the National Board. Just before Christmas vacation Dr. Swords gave a beautiful party for both classes. Our lounge will never be as pretty as it was that day.

By the third trimester, everything was at a frenzied pace. Studying for the Board examination could be postponed no longer. Our class spent many hours of late studying and made many trips to the library. The things of greatest value to us were a quiet corner and a cup of coffee. Our excellent training, blended with just the right amount of coffee, proved to be an effective formula. When the grades were received, our class had an 89 average!

Several parties were given, and our class joined the freshman girls for an ADHA picnic. We were the honored guests of the freshmen at a banquet where we were presented our purple ribbons. At graduation we were given pins and certificates. Now we were Dental Hygienists.

On September 11, 1962, thirty-nine aspiring dental hygienists sat quietly in Room 2, awaiting their first round of classes. Many of the group were very young—just out of high school; this was their first stay away from home. Others were older, more confident and deeply self-assured. They came from eight states, from varied backgrounds and with a wide variety of thoughts, ideas and ambitions. All had some things in common, however: they were a little bit frightened, somewhat awed and a great deal impressed. All around were the people in white who seemed to know exactly where they were going and what they were doing. The seniors, too, seemed older, capable and bubbling over with confidence.

Somewhere a bell rang. A door opened. The group was directed to its first class with Dental Anatomy. A year had begun.

The first trimester passed quickly. They learned to tell second bicuspid from third molars, and incisors from cuspids. From the square knots of First Aid to the tooth paste commercials in speech, the world that had seemed so massive and unfamiliar narrowed and came within their comprehension.

The second trimester began with a heavier schedule of classes. Instruments came; Oral Hygiene began. The long hours of classes led to greater understanding of the workings of dentistry. They went into the clinics.

Christmas came. Another bell rang. The students started home for the first real vacation in many days.

On May 24, school closed. The last tests were finished; a long hard third trimester had at last come to an end. The unfamiliar faces that had first gathered in Room 2 were older, more capable and much less frightened. The mystery and awe had vanished; they had become a working part of a great establishment.

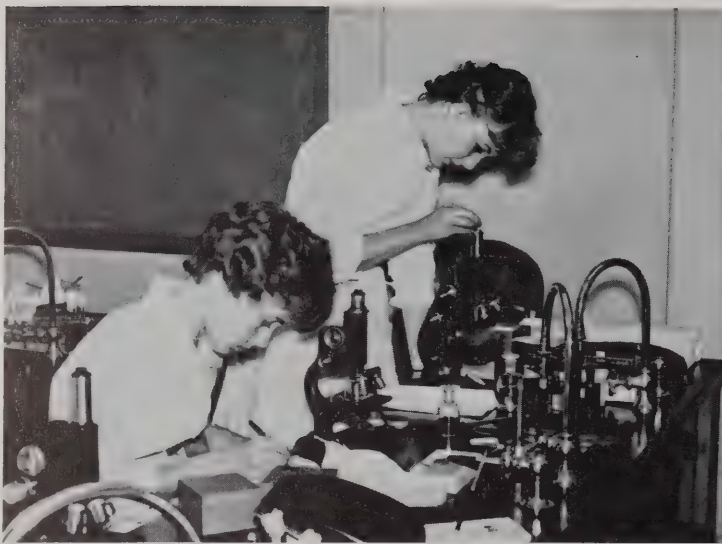

The last bell rang. They were seniors. A new year lay ahead.

It's finally over. I just killed my last frog!
We didn't know John was the jealous type.

What does this have to do with cleaning teeth anyway?
Sometimes mirror space was at a premium.

Not bad, considering that it's the fifteenth retake.

Who keeps putting pumice in my coffee?

Dental Hygiene I

"Girls, when he starts to feed you a line, you simply———"
 Just look at this slide! Wonder what it is?

Mmmmm—Tastes more like grape juice to me.
 Teaching models—yes, aren't they lovely.

A patient's head makes a good arm rest—if the instructor isn't looking.

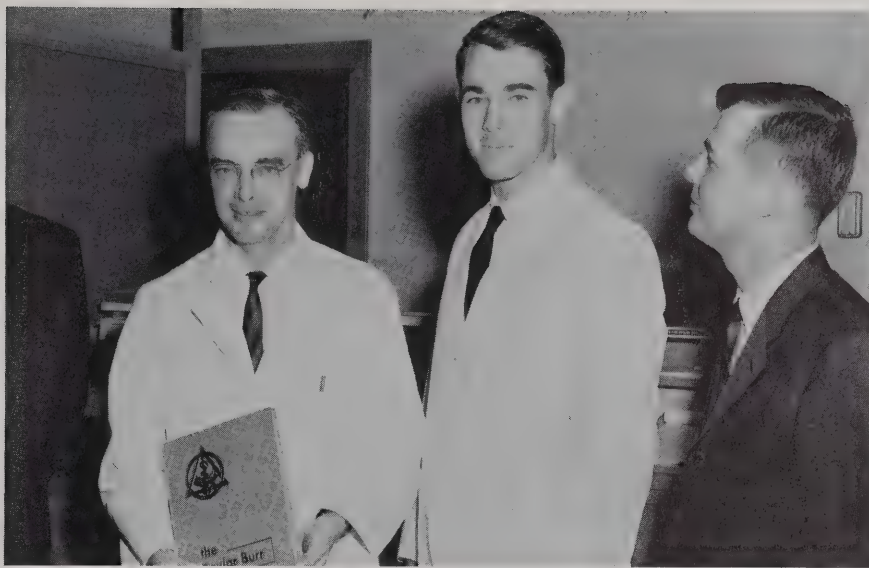

An intense moment in line of duty.

Won't four o'clock ever get here?
Cramming for one of those histology pop tests?

One down, thirty-eight to go.
Well, blow me down, that wheel actually turns.

This is AQUADENT...

the new brush that rinses thoroughly while it cleans teeth and massages gums.

As a doctor, you are well aware that most patients fail to rinse their mouths sufficiently. Plaque and harmful bacteria are simply redistributed without being removed.

The AquaDent helps solve this problem with its constant rinsing process and with the brush to loosen food particles and harmful bacteria. Jets of water spraying from the brush head dislodge food particles and bacteria from areas the ordinary toothbrush cannot reach. The handle contains a colored dentifrice tablet which dissolves in more than a quart of water used during a one-minute brushing period.

Order AquaDent at the professional price and test it yourself. Then prescribe it for your patients.

Connection easily adapted to most bathroom faucets • Each kit contains three brushes, box of dentifrice tablets, plastic tube, patented anti-syphon valve • Provides metered quantity of water • Automatic shut-off feature • Built-in aerator • Measured dentifrice indicates proper brushing time.
